THE TRADITIONAL GIFTING MODEL

Why traditional gifting is still right for your property

Digital gifting is having a moment. Dropship and online-redemption programs are everywhere — and they carry real advantages. But the pitch skips a hard number: what your gifting budget is actually worth by the time it reaches the guest. If your property runs $10–$25 weekly gifts and already hands them out in person on event day, traditional continuity stretches every dollar further than dropship. Here's why:

THE MATH

Tried, Tested, Strategy Approved

In a dropship program, soft costs stack on top of every gift. Traditional continuity is bought in bulk — better product pricing, no door-to-door shipping, no per-gift tax, because guests redeem in person. On a $20 budget in Michigan, the difference is stark.

THE PROOF IS IN THE GIFTING

in incremental revenue per day from carded, invited players

A Southern California casino moved back to traditional gifting and saw a 16% lift in redemptions almost immediately. Same soft-cost math, felt from the guest's side: at a $35 price point, the in-hand traditional gift visibly beat the dropship version — none of the budget lost to markup, shipping, or tax. Guests redeemed more, and those redeemers carried a minimum $150 ADT.

THE SOLUTION

Gifting Day Support

Be honest about why properties abandon traditional gifting: it's rarely price — it's logistics. Storage, event-day staff, a place to stage pallets. If those constraints are your true blocker, digital may be the better fit. But if operations were the only reason you left, GPS removes the headache.

Club-Ready Packaging

Gifts arrive guest-ready at your property. No unboxing, no added staff — products ready to hand out on event day.
